WHY COUNTIES MATTER!
TRANSPORTATION & INFRASTRUCTURE
Transportation and infrastructure are critical components that support the economies of our counties and improve the standard of living for all Americans. By providing efficient transportation and transit options such as buses, trains, light rail and subway systems, counties are the driving force connecting communities. Counties invest in building the schools where students learn, the hospitals that treat and provide care to the community and the jails that house and rehabilitate wrongdoers. From cleaning up storm debris and restoring safety to the community to cleaning the water we drink by maintaining reservoirs, purification plants and pumping stations, counties provide the basic services that are often taken for granted.

Services include:
- Transit
- Roads
- Bridges
- Airports
- Construction of public facilities
- Water and sewage systems
- Solid waste management
- Utilities like gas and electricity

HEALTHCARE

Counties create support systems to keep you healthy from the time you are born until the time you grow old. Many counties operate hospitals and health facilities that provide clinical services, cancer and cardiac care, and emergency and trauma care. County nursing homes offer restorative care and rehabilitation, and promote quality of life and wellness to the elderly. From preventative measures like administering flu shots to educating the public with health information, county health departments ensure the everyday health of their residents.

NACo — BRINGING UNITY TO THE DIVERSITY OF AMERICA’S COUNTIES

The nation’s 3,069 county governments provide the essential services to create healthy, vibrant, and safe communities. Counties support and maintain public infrastructure, transportation and economic development assets; keep residents healthy; ensure public safety to protect our citizens; maintain public information and coordinate elections; and implement a broad array of federal, state and local programs in a cost-effective and efficient manner.

People depend on counties to provide services that build, maintain, and protect their homes, schools and neighborhoods. Counties are also an instrumental player in America’s intergovernmental system of federal, state, and local governments.

NACo members support state and federal policies and programs that provide the tools, resources, and solutions needed to spur job growth, improve the quality of life for all Americans, and increase the economic competitiveness of America’s counties and communities. To accomplish this, NACo adheres to a set of core principles through its core functions.

NACo’s CORE PRINCIPLES

- Empower county leaders with new skills, resources and ideas
- Assist counties with first-class, cost-effective services
- Provide timely, informative and value-added data, knowledge and programs
- Promote sound public policies that advance the interests of counties
- Exercise sound stewardship and management of NACo’s financial, intellectual, and human resources
- Enhance the public’s understanding of county government

NACo’s CORE FUNCTIONS

- Legislative, regulatory, and judicial representation in the nation’s capital
- Research
- Education & technical assistance
- Cost-saving programs
- Solutions for critical problems
- Innovative programs that meet future county needs
THE DIVERSITY OF COUNTIES

No two counties are exactly the same. Counties are one of America’s oldest forms of government, dating back to 1634 when the first county governments were established in Virginia. Ever since, county governments continue to evolve and adapt to changing environments and populations, with Petersburg Borough, Alaska, incorporating as recently as 2013. Counties are diverse in the way they are structured and how they deliver services to their communities. States decide counties’ roles and responsibilities. States can allow counties to govern themselves by granting them home rule authority, which gives counties varying degrees of power to decide their own structural, functional and fiscal organization. Counties’ demographic, geographic and economic characteristics dictate how they deliver services to their communities. The organization and structure of counties are tailored to fit their communities’ needs and characteristics.

- Los Angeles County invests $18.9 billion annually — or more than 23 of our state governments each year.
- If Cook County, Ill., were a state, it would be bigger than 30 states in population.
- Almost 70 percent of counties have less than 50,000 residents.
- One in four acres of county land is federally owned. In the West, one in two acres of county land is federally owned.
