America’s urban counties play a prominent role in the lives of 160 million residents every day. We foster conditions for economic strength, build and maintain transportation systems and critical infrastructure, promote community health and well-being, champion justice and public safety, and implement a broad portfolio of federal, state and local programs.

The National Association of Counties (NACo) Large Urban County Caucus, or “LUCC,” is the leading national body for urban county leaders and is the voice for America’s metropolitan counties before Congress and the administration. Comprised of county executives, governing board members and other elected and senior appointed officials, LUCC members focus on urban challenges and solutions, engage in peer-to-peer information exchanges and inform national policy discussions.

The LUCC Symposium is the premier national forum for the exchange of knowledge and solutions that enhance the operations of America’s 133 metropolitan counties.

LUCC counties (those with at least 500,000 residents) are shaded in blue.
2021–2022 LUCC CHAIR

HON. JOHN O’GRADY
Commissioner, Franklin County, Ohio

Since being elected to the Franklin County Board of Commissioners in November 2008, John O’Grady has worked to make Franklin County one of the best communities in the nation to live, visit and do business. As commissioner, John has assumed leadership roles in economic development initiatives such as the investment in a sustainable financing model for Nationwide Arena; the redevelopment of the Scioto peninsula, anchored by the new Veterans Memorial; and the creation of the Franklin County Infrastructure Works program, a revolving loan program for local infrastructure projects.

When it comes to social services, John focuses his efforts on constructing thoughtful, strategic and collaborative approaches to serving vulnerable communities. In 2009, he established the Somali Work Group, an ongoing collaboration among numerous county agencies, courts, and community organizations tasked with identifying the needs of Franklin County’s immigrant communities and developing effective government responses to those needs. In 2014, he served on the Greater Columbus Infant Mortality Task Force whose work now informs the community’s CelebrateOne initiative to reduce the rate of infant mortality in Columbus, Ohio and Franklin County. Most recently, he has fostered collaboration in combating chronic health conditions and barriers to access through his support of the Franklin County Youth Needs Assessment and the Columbus & Franklin County Addiction Plan.

Prior to serving as commissioner, John worked as an administrator in the State Treasurer’s office, owned his own business, and served two four-year terms as the Clerk of Courts for the Franklin County Common Pleas Courts and the 10th District Court of Appeals. As commissioner, he was selected in 2010, 2013, 2016 and 2017 by his colleagues to serve as Board President.

John is very active in NACo serving as a member on the Board of Directors, member of the Community, Economic and Workforce Development Committee (CEWD), Vice Chair of the CEWD Workforce Subcommittee and Chair of the Large Urban Counties Caucus (LUCC).

Preterm birth and low birth weight are common causes of infant mortality in the United States. While there is no definitive approach for preventing these causes, counties can play a major role in reducing infant mortality rates through systemic change and local strategies. Mothers’ health, environment and experiences affect how infants develop prenatally through their infancy. Join us for a discussion on strategies urban counties can deploy to improve outcomes for mothers and infants.

In March, American Rescue Plan Act was signed into law, which established the $350 billion Coronavirus State and Local Fiscal Recovery Fund. The legislation provided $61.5 billion in direct, flexible funding to counties of all sizes. Now that the U.S. Treasury has begun to administer the dollars, county leaders are deciding how to best invest these critical resources responsibly and equitably to ensure the recovery of our residents, communities and national economy. This session will examine eligible uses of Recovery Funds and steps local leaders can take when developing and implementing plans. Session participants will also have the opportunity to meet in small groups and discuss county investments of Fiscal Recovery Funds.
