About LUCC

LUCC members at the 2017 Symposium in Salt Lake County, Utah

America's urban counties play a prominent role in the lives of 156 million residents every day. We foster conditions for economic strength, build and maintain transportation systems and critical infrastructure, promote community health and well-being, champion justice and public safety and implement a broad portfolio of federal, state and local programs.

The National Association of Counties' (NACo) Large Urban County Caucus, or "LUCC," is the leading national body for urban county leaders and is the voice for America's metropolitan counties before Congress and the Administration. Comprised of county executives, governing board members and other senior elected and appointed officials, LUCC members focus on urban challenges and solutions, engage in peer-to-peer information exchanges and inform national policy discussions.

The LUCC Symposium is the premier national forum for the exchange of knowledge and solutions that enhance the operations of America's 131 metropolitan counties. This year, more than 200 county officials from 93 counties are convening in San Diego County for the 2018 LUCC Symposium.

2018-2019 LUCC CHAIR

LARRY L. JOHNSON | Commissioner, DeKalb County, Georgia

Commissioner Larry Johnson represents District 3 of DeKalb County, Ga. and has served as chair of NACo's Large Urban County Caucus (LUCC) since July 2017. He has previously served in various positions of leadership within NACo, including chairmanship of the organization's Health Policy Steering Committee. In his tenure on the DeKalb County Board, Commissioner Johnson has spearheaded efforts to improve the health and wellbeing of the county's residents, including an initiative designed to improve community health through walking. CONNECTING THE UNCONNECTED

COUNTIES LINKING RESIDENTS TO SERVICES

Connecting the Unconnected is NACo's 2018-19 President's initiative, under the leadership of San Diego County Supervisor Greg Cox. The Initiative explores ways that county governments are connecting our residents in the spirit of building healthy, safe and vibrant communities. The plenary and breakout sessions during the 2018 LUCC Symposium will facilitate attendee participation in the initiative by exploring how urban counties can work to "connect the unconnected" when it comes to public health, disconnected youth and data and technology. Following the Symposium, NACo will prepare and distribute a summary of the challenges and solutions highlighted during the event's discussions on each of the below topics.

PUBLIC HEALTH

Plenary and breakout sessions will explore how county leaders can mitigate public health threats by proactively connecting residents to preventive services. Residents who are disconnected from health services are most at risk.

YOUTH VIOLENCE

Plenary and breakout sessions will explore how county leaders can help curb violence among youth by connecting young people to educational and employment opportunities. Disconnected youth are most at risk to become involved in dangerous activities.

DATA AND TECHNOLOGY

Breakout session will explore how county leaders can improve the impact of county programs and policies by connecting them with the appropriate technology and by aligning them with data-driven research. Disconnected county services may not create the intended benefits for residents.

Symposium Guest Speakers

SANDRA MCBRAYER is the Chief Executive Officer of the Children's Initiative and an internationally known advocate for children, youth and families. The Children's Initiative is a San Diego based child advocacy agency. The Initiative, through collaboration and partnerships with community leaders, organizations and government agencies develops, enhances and strengthens policy, programs and projects which serve children and youth. In 1987, Ms. McBrayer founded and developed the first successful school in the United States for homeless and unattended youth, serving as head teacher for the Homeless Outreach School (now known as Monarch High School) in San Diego until 1996. Ms. McBrayer started her teaching career working at Juvenile Hall and with court involved youth. President Clinton named Ms. McBrayer the 1994 United States Teacher of the Year, and as such she served as a national education ambassador.

MICHELLE VAN HANDEL is the Acting Associate Director of the Program and Performance Improvement Office in the National Center for HIV/AIDS, Viral Hepatitis, STD, and TB Prevention at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). She graduated from Drexel University School of Public Health in 2009 with a Master of Public Health. Following graduate school, Ms. Van Handel served as an Association of Schools of Public Health Fellow and Health Scientist in CDC's Program Evaluation Branch from 2009 to 2016. She has been a Senior Health Scientist in the Improvement Office since 2016. The Improvement Office focuses on high-impact prevention, maximizing opportunities in health care systems, enhancing program collaboration and service integration, and strengthening modeling and use of data to improve public health and health care performance. Ms. Van Handel has authored 25 peer-reviewed manuscripts on issues related to infectious diseases.

BILL WALTON was inducted into the Basketball Hall of Fame in 1993 following a legendary playing career at the collegiate and professional levels. At UCLA, his team won 88 consecutive games en route to two undefeated championship seasons, and in the NBA, he brought the Portland Trail Blazers their only title in franchise history before playing a key role on a 1985 Boston Celtics team that is widely considered among the best in league history. Following his playing career, Mr. Walton again found success, this time as a renowned sports broadcaster who garnered a 2001 Emmy award for best live sports television broadcast. While still active as a basketball analyst and broadcaster, Mr. Walton often takes to the stage to share with leaders in various sectors the lessons he has learned over the course of a decorated career that began under the tutelage of legendary UCLA coach John Wooden.

HOMEBOY INDUSTRIES is a Los Angeles-based organization that provides hope, training, and support to formerly gang-involved and previously incarcerated men and women, allowing them to redirect their lives and become contributing members of their communities. Each year, over 10,000 former gang members from across Los Angeles come through Homeboy Industries' doors in an effort to make a positive change. They are welcomed into a community of mutual kinship, love, and a wide variety of services ranging from tattoo removal to anger management and parenting classes. Full-time employment is offered for more than 200 men and women at a time through an 18-month program that helps them re-identify who they are in the world, offers job training so they can move on from Homeboy Industries and become contributing members of the community.

InterContinental Hotel, Balboa B (Fourth Floor)

Counties play a critical role in funding and providing human services for low-income communities, yet leadership often may not know whether these services deliver a consistent, measurable impact. Some county leaders are looking to outcomes financing as a tool to shift the focus of human service contracts from process and compliance to achieving better outcomes for residents. Andrea Phillips, a national expert on outcomes financing and Manager of the Community Outcomes Fund, will lead a discussion with counties that are planning to shift to pay-for-success contracts and why they believe it will better target their limited resources to programs that work.

9:00 A.M. – 9:30 A.M. SYMPOSIUM KICK-OFF: CONNECTING THE UNCONNECTED

InterContinental Hotel, Pacific Ballroom AB (Second Floor)

In conjunction with his NACo presidency in 2018-2019, San Diego County Supervisor Greg Cox has launched an initiative that brings focus to how counties "Connect the Unconnected" throughout America's communities. During this opening plenary session, Supervisor Cox and LUCC leaders will begin conversations around the theme of "Connecting the Unconnected" that will continue throughout the Symposium.

During this plenary session, national experts and county leaders will discuss the community and budgetary threats posed by disease outbreaks and explore how urban counties can mitigate these threats by proactively connecting residents to preventive services.

- Ms. Michelle Van Handel, Acting Associate Director, Program and Performance Improvement Office, National Center for HIV/AIDS, Viral Hepatitis, STD and TB Prevention, U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC)

11:00 A.M. – 12:00 P.M. PLENARY SESSION: CURBING YOUTH VIOLENCE THROUGH CONNECTIONS TO OPPORTUNITY

InterContinental Hotel, Pacific Ballroom AB (Second Floor)

In urban communities across the nation, violence among youth presents challenges and opportunities for local leaders. Whether this violence takes the form of gang activity or occurs in more isolated scenarios, its effect on counties is diminished public safety, strain on resources, overcrowding of jails and weakening of the local workforce. During this plenary session, panelists will begin a conversation on youth violence in urban counties, covering both law enforcement efforts aimed at preserving public safety and “upstream” initiatives focused on connecting disconnected youth to educational and employment opportunities.

- Ms. Sandra McBrayer, Chief Executive Officer, Children’s Initiative
- Hon. Errol Toulon, Sheriff, Suffolk County, N.Y.
- Program Alum, Homeboy Industries

12:15 P.M. – 1:30 P.M. NETWORKING LUNCHEON AND DOCUMENTARY TRAILER

InterContinental Hotel, Bayview Ballroom (Second Floor)

Sup. Barger will share a message from the filmmakers and outline a social impact campaign that will accompany the film and create opportunities for urban county leaders to help connect foster youth to the opportunities they need to thrive.

2:00 P.M. – 3:15 P.M.

CONCURRENT ROUNDTABLE BREAKOUT SESSIONS

The Symposium's afternoon roundtable breakout sessions will bring together smaller "breakout" groups of attendees to continue each of the morning's plenary discussions and an additional conversation on the role of data and technology in connecting urban county residents to the services and opportunities they need to live healthy and productive lives. During each session, attendees will engage in facilitated discussion of challenges and solutions related to the topic at hand; NACo will document this exchange of challenges and solutions and will publish a summary of each session following the Symposium.

Note: The Midway is a short stroll from the InterContinental Hotel; staff will be on hand to guide you to the ship from the hotel's first-floor entrance beginning at 6:15pm. Because of the ship's flooring, high-heeled shoes are strongly discouraged. All Symposium attendees are invited.

The USS Midway was a United States Navy aircraft carrier, commissioned after World War II.
